FOOTBALL SEASON TO OPEN FRIDAY

Quakers to Meet Indians in Opening Football Game

Pacific college will open its football season with a game with the Chemawa Indian school on October 17 on the local field. Although it is not a conference game it promises to be of unusual interest to every loyal Newberg fan.

It is Chemawa's reputation to have one of the fastest teams in the valley and this year's team is no exception. Their quick shift plays and their fleet-footed back field make their team particularly hard to manage.

It is likely that the Quakers will be in good trim for the game, although their exact lineup is not yet determined. Seven of last year's letter men are on the squad, but because of the new material that has presented itself, none of them have found it easy to "salt down" a position on the team. There have been no injuries to speak of thus far, and the entire squad has been working consistently.

The enthusiasm and support of the business men of Newberg has played no small part in producing the good spirit and "fight" that is now evident in the Pacific squad, and this backing has been making itself known in various ways lately. The Miller Mercantile company are going to give a "Sportcraft" sweater to the college man who plays the most consistent game and shows the best sportsmanship during the football season. The Graham Drug company offers a pig-skin bill case to the one chosen second. The judges are not to be announced. D. W. M.

ATHENA HAS PROFITABLE OPEN MEETING

The first real literary meeting of the Athena Literary society proved a great success. The prospective members were guests.

The girls assembled in the dorm parlors Wednesday, October 1. After a short business meeting the president, Rosa Aebischer, gave an account of the value and meaning of Athena. Gwendolyn Hanson gave a very interesting review of the Geographic magazine, then Ruth Campbell's enjoyable reading concluded the program.

The girls all left with a feeling of the better understanding of Athena and what it shall mean in the future. T. R.

IMPRESSIVE RECOGNITION SERVICE IN Y. W. C. A.

President Pennington Speaks of Modern Philistines

At the Y. W. C. A. Recognition Service October 1 twenty new members pledged themselves to the Y. W. purpose. After some special music several of the old members gave short talks on the four points of the Y. W. pledge, faith, service, character and influence. They pointed out the importance of these characteristics in our lives, and showed us what it would mean to our Y. W. if each member lived up to these four points. It would not only help our Y. W. but also the national and international Y. W.

Each girl lighted her candle from the big candles representing faith, service, character, and influence; after this they all repeated the Y. W. purpose, pledging themselves to lead students to faith in God through Jesus Christ; to lead them into membership and service in the christian church, to build them up in christian faith and character, especially through the study of the Bible; and to influence them to devote themselves, in united effort with all christians, in making the will of Christ effective in human society, and to extending the kingdom of God throughout the world.

The meeting of the Y. W. C. A. Wednesday morning was certainly a well planned and a greatly appreciated one. The speaker was President Pennington. For the lesson he quoted the ninth and tenth verses of II. Sam. the 23rd chapter: "And after him was Eleazar the son of Dodo the Ahoite, one of the three mighty men with David, when they defied the Philistines that were there gathered together to battle, and the men of Israel were gone away:

"He arose and smote the Philistines until his hand was weary, and his hand clave unto the sword: and the Lord wrought a great victory that day: and the people returned after him only to spoil."

He spoke of the modern Philistines and the battles which we must fight and win. Again he said that we all cannot be leaders, but that each must fill his particular position and that Y. W. C. A. demands only what is just of each of us.

Two special selections were given, a violin solo and a vocal duet, both were very well rendered and greatly enjoyed by all. With such meetings prepared for our benefit, how can we afford to miss them? E. R.

A meeting of the Associated Student Body was held last Friday afternoon after school for the election of vice-president to fill the vacancy left by John Chenevert, who is attending the U. of O. this year; Hilma Hendrickson was elected for this office. Some action was taken on the plans for the annual Hallowe'en social, and it was decided to leave the definite planning in the hands of the freshman class.

THE PENN CHRONICLE OUTLINES CHANGES IN FOOTBALL

Trickery Pass Play Barred—Kick-off Rule Changed

With Pacific's football season starting next Friday, October 17, considerable interest in football in general and new rules in particular should be manifested among the students and friends of the institution and it is with this end in view that we are here publishing verbatim from the Penn Chronicle the fundamental changes made in the football rules for the season of 1924. It is hoped that from this article the busy reader can glean the knowledge he seeks:

Kick-off Rule Changed

The change of most note regards the kickoff rule. Hereafter the ball will be kicked off from the center of the field, or any point back of it, instead of the forty-yard lines as was the custom in 1923 and former years; the opposing team being restrained on their own forty-yard line. Artificial tees are absolutely tabooed and the ball must be kicked off the ground, players forbidden even to scrape up loose dirt for a tee. This should result in the ball being run back further and place a premium on the man who can drive the oval fifty yards over the goal lines on the kick-offs.

At a meeting of the rules interpretations committee, over a recent week-end, several vital questions were cleared up regarding the kickoff. First, a man holding the ball for a kickoff may be offside without penalty, but must hold the ball on the ground and not in the air. The kicker may make a dent with his heel in which to set the ball, but he may not dig a hole or trench for it.

Second, in case the kickoff is made from a point behind the middle of the field, the opponents shall be restrained at a point ten yards in advance of the spot from which the kick is made. This change was enacted to avoid the situation which might develop should the kicking eleven retreat to any point back of the 50-yard line, the defending team being held on their 40-yard line, make a short kick and recover it at midfield, which would be legal after the ball had traveled ten yards.

The rule which forbids ineligible players from interfering with opponents who may catch forward passes practically sounds the death knell of the screen forward pass. Ineligible players of the passer's side must keep out of the way of opponents who are in a position to catch the ball. Heretofore many offenses have been built around this so-called smoke screen attack and the success of each pass at least from the standpoint of non-interference, was practically assured. But this year such plays will be ruled the same as those which govern the opportunity to make a fair catch, all of which should tend to increase the speed and decisiveness of aerial attack.

HONESTY LAUDED IN CHAPEL TALK

"Ambitions" Subject Chosen by Miss Sutton

On Thursday, October 2, Professor Weesner spoke on "The Virtue of Honesty." In leading up to his ultimate points, Mr. Weesner said in substance:

He who has the impression that fundamental virtues and standards of morals are of secondary importance in success should free his mind from that impression.

There are always those who bewail the turmoil of society and declare that the benefits of civilization are fast disappearing; that society is fairly rotten; and that the people of the United States, especially, are going to the inevitable "bow-wows." Of course the problems of society are serious, and the burden of solving these problems rests on the generation. Every young man and woman contributes unconsciously to this solution, either helpfully or detrimentally; idling adds to the difficulty already at hand. But the diverse advocations of the calamity howlers do not necessarily make their contentions a fact. The perishing of organized society will be made possible only through the failure of each individual to make morality a part of his daily life, and the failure to restrain the attacking disease of essential virtues.

The first fundamental virtue is honesty. The adolescent years are the ideal ones in which to practice habits of honesty; if habits of honesty—of meeting obligations—are not appealing during student life, no end of effort may be required to acquire them in later life, and naturally incorrect habits may prove fatal handicaps on the road to greater life and success.

Miss Sutton spoke in chapel on Thursday, October 9, on "Ambitions." She began by illustrating the natural relation between ambitions, mottoes, and ideals, quoting two great mottoes: "Thy will be done in earth as it is in heaven," and "Don't wait until you are a man to be great, be a great boy."

One's ideal should be always before one; and this ideal must never assume the form of money or power, for money is a false goal and power only creates a desire for more power. It is well to keep in mind at all times where we are going; many people travel at a rapid rate but have no definite destination in view.

Unselfishness is a true characteristic of a worthy ambition and is manifested in the ability to sacrifice one's own gain for another's glory. The ultimate is far more important than the immediate goal. "Ambition is the soul's test in reaching a great goal."

The realization of one's ambition is not to ask the question: "What shall I do for a living?" but "What shall I do with my life?"

A WIDER HORIZON

In previous years we have been solicited to send aid to foreign students in the name of the Student Friendship Fund. We sent our little sum, and it was of great benefit to those who received it, but did we understand the need for our aid, and follow up the course the money took? No doubt a few folks on our campus are in touch with the work but it is probably safe to say that that few does not include more than four or five people. What about the rest of us?

How easy it is to become provincial. We feel that these talked-of subjects of "the racial problem," "student friendship," and so on are not important to us. We have all we can do to attend to the problems and the work that arises here on our own campus, and cannot waste the time and energy it would take to become familiar with outside work. But each day new proofs come to us that the world is not such a huge place after all, and that there is danger of our losing out some day if we do not take advantage of the opportunities we have to learn what is going on about us. Think of last year's senior class for instance—only a small group of six people. Where are they now? One is on his way to India. One is in school in Kansas, and one is among students in France now, expecting to go to Germany soon. How unforeseen that wide scattering was last year. Who knows where any of us will be a few years from now, so why should we not begin to take an interest in world problems?

The Student Friendship organization does not plan to solicit for money this year, but they do ask that we arouse ourselves to a knowledge of student conditions in foreign countries. We hope that Eva will return next spring early enough to tell us of the experiences she has had in England, France and Germany. But there are many other ways that we can learn what is going on. We little realize the hardships that European students are undergoing in order to receive an education similar to the one which we have given us with so little self-sacrifice on our parts. There are several magazines in our library where we can find interesting and thought-provoking articles on student conditions the world over. Let us make use of these publications and broaden our point of view.

We need not limit ourselves how-

TWO VITALLY IMPORTANT TOPICS IN Y. M. MEETINGS

"The Call to the Ministry" was the topic on which Walter Cook spoke to the Y. M. on October 2. He said that men are called to the ministry in several ways. "The call," he said, "may be a direct call from God, or it may come through a personal friend or through hearing a sermon. But regardless of the way in which it comes it should be heeded." The talk was illustrated by the recounting of several interesting incidents relating to men who have had special calls to the ministry. Mr. Cook was able to speak with emphasis on this topic because he intends to devote his life to the ministry.

On October 9 the Y. M. opened with a solo by Hubert Armstrong which was very much appreciated. Professor McClean then spoke of "Our Neighbors to the South." He was a missionary in Cuba for several years and gave a short but very interesting account of the people of that country. He told of the unusual politeness of the people and of their devotion and loyalty to friends, which, to the casual observer, serves as a cloak to cover up their deadened moral sense. Professor McClean closed his talk with an appeal for the Cubans, where there is great opportunity for mission work.

KANYON HALL CELEBRATES ANNUAL OPEN HOUSE

The wild ringing of the doorbell announced the arrival of "Cookie" and his family of boys. They were immediately turned loose to wander at will over the dorm and visit any or all of the rooms they wished and see how girls "keep house." Just how they enjoyed this pilgrimage we are unable to say.

Upon returning to the parlor each boy found his fortune lying in wait. Walter is to be a barber of renown; Harlan is to be a carpenter; Edgar a peanut vender; Glenn a pianist; Eugene a novelist, "Spike" a preacher, Harold a book agent; Seth Oliver a farmer; Robert a doctor; Albert the P. C. janitor, and Charles an artist.

Games followed in which some people failed to recognize even their closest friends with a "spoon." Many interesting and hitherto, unknown secrets were discovered when the bottle was spun.

When everyone went down to the dining room for refreshments they found that some very industrious spiders had been at work and the room was one mass of webs. Each boy had to unwind his own particular web in order to rescue his supper partner who was caught on the end of the web.

The girls really thought the refreshments were harmless but they must have been a little too strong for one young gentleman was so far gone he couldn't find his way back home. M. C.

The staff will appreciate it if everyone will co-operate in gathering news items, whether it be news of campus affairs or news of former students and faculty members. Remember this is "our" paper.

ever, to an interest in affairs across the water. We should keep in touch with what is going on in other campuses in Oregon and the whole United States. In order to make this possible we are trying to increase our list of exchanges. Read the other papers on the exchange table in the library. They are for your pleasure as much as ours. So let us endeavor to make this a year of wider horizons, and tear down the high walls of provincialism that have been slowly rising around our campus.

QUEER OUTFITS MARK FIRST YEARS FOR INITIATION

On Saturday evening, October 4, occurred the annual test of the first year courage, when the second years, after strenuous hours of preparation, met their youthful guests.

The girls, wearing short skirts and mismatched stockings, and the boys, in knee breeches and varied stockings, were conducted to Room 14, which had been tastefully decorated with autumn foliage and flowers and made homelike by the placing of rugs and furniture.

Several lively games were followed by "The Wearing of the Green;" then with their president as leader the first years groped their way through dark upper regions where ghosts and strange sounds met their eyes and ears. During their absence a bountiful supper of bread and milk was placed on the table, and each Freshie, with the aid of a nursemaid and without the aid of a spoon, consumed two bowls of well seasoned bread and milk.

Dr. Holland, with Nurse McClean as assistant, next prescribed for the ailments of their patients, finding in almost every case a diseased nervous system and a tendency toward hysterics. To correct this, punch, cake and ice cream were served in generous doses.

By this time all traces of class lines had vanished so all joined in the college song and said good night. F. D. R.

TREFIAN HOLDS OPEN MEETING FOR NEW COLLEGE WOMEN

The second meeting this year of the Trefian literary society was called to order in the dormitory parlors, Wednesday, October 8. This was an open meeting to which all the new college women were invited.

After the roll call the installation of new officers took place. Mildred Tucker, the new president, said a few words of appreciation for the work that the outgoing officers had done. On the conclusion of the necessary business a short but very delightful musical program was given. It included two piano solos, one by Ruth Whitlock and the other by Hilma Hendrickson, and a vocal solo by Esther Haworth, accompanied by Miss Lewis.

After the music the meeting was turned over to the social committee who led in the fun making that followed. No one present fully realized until she tried to think of the word ending in the letters "age" and which correspond to the condition given that there were so many words with this ending all having vastly different meanings.

At about 5:30 refreshments consisting of punch and wafers, were served, which met with the approval of all those present.

The Trefians hope that they will soon have the opportunity of welcoming all their guests of the evening into the society as regular members. O. E. R.

ABOUT THE CAMPUS AND ELSEWHERE

Lolita Hinshaw reports having a fine time, good eats, etc., at the Gully's Saturday night and Sunday, October 5.

Walter Cook, Seth Oliver Terrell and Milton Wells spent the week end in Portland.

Robert Smith's Smiling face is missed at the dormitory. He is now coming back and forth on the train from Sherwood.

We are glad to see the freshmen appear in green caps. They are so becoming and seem to fit, in more ways than one, their wearers.

Quite a number of girls turned out for volley ball Tuesday evening. We miss a few of the old standbys of last year and hope that with them and the new ones to make a record for P. C. this year.

Mr. Armstrong, Olive and Hubert, and Miss Dilla Tucker visited relatives of the Armstrongs in Salem Sunday afternoon, October 5th.

The dormitory bunch almost split their sides laughing while playing "Going to Jerusalem" and "Jerusalem and Jericho" last Tuesday at the dormitory parlors.

C. R. Hinshaw of Portland, a former student of P. C., visited friends in Newberg, Sunday, October 5.

Some of the college girls have been acting as substitutes in the public schools during the last week.

Miss Dungan and five girls hiked to Heater's woods at Springbrook, Friday, October 3. There hot weenies and buns helped to make the outing a success.

Eugene must think every house is "open house" on Friday, October 3rds. People are getting pretty bold when they walk right into a strange house, turn the lights on, and imagine themselves at home.

We hear sometimes that it rains cats and dogs, but did you ever hear of it raining bikes? If it did not rain them, how did they manage to get on top of the backstop and in the tree?

Daisy Bisbee has had tonsillitis this week.

The sociology class took great pleasure in hearing Florence Lee recite one morning when Mr. Michener was unable to attend school. Hubert acted as professor pro tem and quizzed his unsuspecting classmate over half the chapter before she discovered it was a put up job and class was not supposed to meet.

Edith Sanderman, who was in college the first semester last year, has gone up to Neah Bay to spend the winter with Miss Lee, where it is hoped she will build up her strength after her prolonged illness of last spring and summer.

Around two weeks ago, while out in the woods, the Michener's and Miss Dungan picked some beautifully colored leaves, gathered their arms full, brought them home in their car, and enjoyed them as decorations. It wasn't long however un-

FRESHMEN WERE VICTORS IN BAG RUSH OCTOBER 10

Plenteous amount of school spirit was manifested Friday, October 10, when the frosh and sophomores met in a "bag rush" at 4:45 on the football field. With the bags on the 50-yard line, the opposing teams lined up on the 40-yard lines opposite each other, and waited anxiously for the whistle. The rules provided for seven men on each team, but one sophomore had doctor's orders not to indulge in such strenuous sport, so the teams were seven against six. The sophs bravely faced the situation, however, and at the sound of the whistle, struck hard at their youthful antagonists. Six sophomores and six freshmen clinched in a deadlock and a seventh freshman fell greedily upon a bag; but either confused or misunderstanding the rules, he started back toward the sophomore's goal, and the shouts of his comrades stopped him just in the nick of time for he all but crossed the line. When he realized his mistake he carried the bag in the right direction and scored a touchdown for the frosh. Another freshman then broke loose and carried the second bag across.

Considerable objections were raised by the crowd and members of the junior class because of the apparent unfairness of seven men against six, consequently one freshman was discarded and one ball was put back into play. This proved to be far more exciting. It was a jumbled up mess of legs and arms, and almost anybody's game until Ed Street pulled himself loose from beneath the pile and Hibbs came to his rescue. The old game of "Dumping the Apple Cart" didn't have a ghost of a show compared to this free for all—ask "Bevo" and Hibbs. When Ed clamped his two grappling hooks onto the old bag and gave a heave Professor Michener became excited for he feared Ed would plow the field dragging such a hard bunch. One big jerk finally gave Ed possession and almost exhausted, he waddled and wobbled across the goal. Technically, according to the rules agreed on by a committee from the sophomore and freshman classes and from the faculty, the freshmen were the victors, but man for man the sophomores showed themselves to be no "slouches."

The line-up of the teams was as follows:

Sophomores	Freshmen
Street	Hutchens
Hibbs	Lienard
E. Knapp	Jones
Hester	Beard
Winslow	Schlaepfi
Everest	Brown
	D. Knapp

til Mr. Michener had the appearance of a blushing school girl. His face gradually began to swell, making him so self-conscious that he missed several of his classes. Probably the experience was beneficial after all, for the Micheners and Miss Dungan now know what poison oak is. Mr. Michener also says he knows how a fish must feel when it scales.

Four other faculty members have been on the sick list. Mr. Macy's classes were minus a teacher for several days week before last. He first suffered with a bad cold which developed into the grippe. Mr. Lewis was absent Thursday of last week. He evidently thought it didn't pay to extend the absence, for Friday found him back at work. The academy Latin classes missed Mrs. Hodgkin last Monday. She also was the victim of a cold. Miss Johnson is the last absentee. She has been suffering with a cold for several days which kept her from school Friday. At the present date she is still confined to her home.

OPEN HOUSE NOT YET ADOPTED AS A TOWN CUSTOM

It has leaked out from various sources that at "open house" held at Canyon Hall on the evening of October 3, certain strong refreshments were served. Not being fortunate enough to be an insider, the writer cannot truthfully state the nature of these refreshments, but judging from the effect they had on one luckless chap, one or two conclusions have been arrived at.

It is evident that the idea of "open house" became an obsession with this young man, for, as he wended his way in the general direction of his place of abode, he stealthily approached a residence on Third and Edwards streets, and, finding the door unlocked and the way clear, stole in to the house and proceeded upstairs. In one room, after turning on the light, he found nothing to suit his taste, so he continued his search in the next one, but there the joke was on him, for he failed to locate the light switch and collided with the bath tub. This disgusted him so completely that he discontinued his wanton rampage and left the house. In dejection he went to the residence on Fourth and Edwards streets where he has his room, but there he met with more bitter disappointment, for this door was apparently locked against him. Now his spirits were below zero and his feelings were decidedly hurt to think that luck could be so much against him, so he trudged back to the boys' dormitory where he spent the night, bemoaning his fate.

While he now stoutly maintains that his "first offense" was all a mistake, still he will be forever known as "Gene, the housebreaker."

FOR JOLLY TIME

On October 10, a merry group of Academy Students gathered in the college building for their student body party. Many new and interesting games were played, such as, "I love my love with an A," and many tricks such as "Magic Writing," where people showed their lack of comprehension. Madame Flor, a learned palmist, who has studied in London and other places abroad, told the fortunes of some of the guests. Some were favorable and some otherwise, but no one seemed to take them too seriously and the fortunes furnished good material for conversation for bashful couples. The guests were then divided into two groups and they played charades.

The supper partners were chosen in a rather unique manner. The girls were seated in a circle and a boy, blindfolded, was brought into the circle and whirled around. Whoever he then pointed at was his partner. Refreshments of jello and cake were served by Doc and Mabel in waiters caps and aprons. The academy student body is indeed grateful for the delightful party planned and carried out by their able social committee chairman, Rosa Aebischer. R. E. H.

PENN CHRONICLE OUTLINES CHANGES IN FOOTBALL

Another alternation of note is the placing of the ball on the three-yard line after a touchdown instead of the five-yard line as was the case last year. This should encourage the use of forward passes and trick line and end plays to net the extra digit rather than the proverbial drop or place kick.

It is also made clear that if an ineligible player of the passing team is struck by a forward pass the ball is not automatically dead. If a member of the defending team secures possession of the oval before it touches the ground and after hitting the ineligible player he may run with it. In any event, he has the choice of gain or his team may have possession of the ball at the point of previous down.

Bar Trickery Pass Play

Coaches are also aware of the fact that a player cannot run out of bounds and then return to the field of play to receive a forward pass. This play was used extensively by a number of teams in recent years, but was absolutely contrary to the spirit of the rules, which emphatically state that the game should be played between the two end lines and the side chalk marks. A recent interpretation of the rule states that it does not apply to a man going past the endline of his end zone and then coming back into that zone to receive the ball.

Smart mentors are not overlooking the fundamentals, which have been the cause of many games being won or lost in recent years, and it is certain that every player who goes on the field will have the new rulings well in mind. Regardless of the care taken some mistakes will be made, and opposing teams will be quick to take advantage of them, but it is hoped that most of the 1924 struggles will be won on their merits.

PLAN FOR MIXED CHORUS OF FORTY VOICES

No little agitation has been started for a mixed chorus this year in order that those men of the institution who have an inclination toward joyful sounds may have an opportunity to so express themselves. We emphasize the "men" here for the simple reason that the women of the institution would find very little trouble in organizing another women's glee club and put on another concert independent of male help, with the exception of course of Professor Hull; while the men must for once admit their need of help from the fairer sex because of an appalling lack of first tenor material.

A company of some forty voices is planned on, and with twenty or more men already "raring to go" and sixteen women having expressed their desire to join in this joint effort toward some genuine pleasure, it looks as though the organization has every reason to be a big success. And the deciding guarantee which eliminates all doubt of failure is the fact that the Hulls are pushing the idea. Professor Hull has agreed to direct the chorus, and Mrs. Hull will probably furnish the accompaniments. With these assurances of an interesting organization, all should be ready to start on actual work within the week.
